Back To Health PT, LLC Notice for Telehealth Services

Purpose: This notice is to advise our patients of the opportunity to receive telehealth services and obtain informed consent for such services. Telehealth services are those health services provided by a telecommunication system, such as video conference.

Acknowledgement: Telehealth provides improved access to healthcare by enabling you to receive health services and consultations without physically visiting us. However, there are some potential risks associated with such services. By agreeing to participate in telehealth services, you understand that risks may include, but are not limited to, the following:

- 1. Not all conditions and treatment will be appropriate for telehealth services. Back to Health, in its sole discretion, may deny telehealth services at any time.
- 2. The information obtained before and during a telehealth consultation may be insufficient for treatment, so that an in-person meeting may be necessary. After commencing a telehealth session, Back to Health, in its sole discretion, may determine that an in-person session is necessary. This could result in a delay or interruption to services.
- 3. There is a potential for breach of privacy of personal health information. While security measures are in place, on rare occasions, such measures may fail.
- 4. The use of telecommunication may be limited by service interruptions or device, which could cause a delay in services or impact the quality of the telehealth services.
- 5. The use of telecommunication systems raises the risk that you could be overheard by a third party while discussing your healthcare. We recommend that you receive telehealth services in a private location and away from other people to reduce this risk. You acknowledge that the location from which you receive telehealth services is in your sole control and assume any risks associated with being overheard by a third party.
- 6. Because there is no direct contact with us during a telehealth session, it may be more difficult for us to evaluate your condition, identify relevant symptoms, and develop and apply treatment plans.
- 7. Telehealth services may not be covered by your insurance. You should contact your carrier before participating in a telehealth session to determine coverage.

Optional Agreement to Receive Telehealth Services: Back to Health PT, LLC, offers telehealth services to its patients. These services are optional. By consenting to receive telehealth services, you are agreeing to assume all risks associated with such services. You further agree that you will only receive services while you are located within the State of Illinois. By signing below, you acknowledge that you have received and reviewed Back to Health PT, LLC's Notice for Telehealth Services and consent to receiving such services. You may withdraw consent at any time by providing notice to us in writing.
